COURT SCORES MOTORISTS. Careless Approach to Grade Crossings Costs Many Lives.

(From New York Times) "If a keener sense of responsibility could be instilled in the public, who use our highways to that they could recognize the duties which are imposed upon them when approaching a railroad crossing, the great number of fatal accidents which occur annually at grade crossings might be greatly reduced. This is a subject upon which the Department of the Public Utilities Commission of Maine is considering a recent accident at Twitchell's Crossing, about three miles east of South Paris, Me., when three men were instantly killed in a collision between their car and a train of the Canadian National Railways, says a bulletin from that organization.

It was shown that while the train crew observed all of the regulations, and that the motor cars had an unobstructed view of the line for a considerable distance, several automobiles were driven across the tracks in both directions in front of the approaching train without any of the drivers making "any of the usual and ordinary precautions which not only law but reasonable prudence require" the writer remarks. According to the evidence, at least one of the automobiles, besides the one involved in the accident, narrowly escaped collision with the train.

"In many other accidents which have been called to our attention," the report of the commission observes, "travelers of the highway have shown an utter lack of appreciation of their responsibilities when approaching a railroad crossing." The commissioners who conducted the hearing were Albert J. Stearns, Herbert W. Trafton and Albert Greenlaw.

The Maine Egg Laying Contest
By H. M. Tucker, Supervisor

Five years ago a modern era in egg laying contesting opened with the poultrymen of Maine holding an egg laying contest, at which time, where a breeder could not stand an egg, he would be standing in the time to go on, as to how it was brought about, the supervision of this contest was the Department of Agriculture, but it was not long before the legislature of this State appropriated money to build the contest, although this money did not come until the following year. It was built during the summer of 1911 and was completed in time to open the contest on November 1st, 1911. The first year was a fair one, but the second year was a bad one, not so much because of the fact that the chicks came in with the tops being rather heavy. The next year we were fortunate in escape.

had the disease in a particularly rampant and fatal form, while others had it in a mild form, and some uninfected and thus immunized. Nature became interested in this vaccine, and before asking questions I got a quantity of it. I got a quantity of this vaccine for experimental purposes. Without going into detail I will say that our work with this vaccine and the contest plant and in the contest plant has been very successful. All the birds sent to the contest fall that have not previously had the disease or been vaccinated with the vaccine. The vaccine is made in cases where this has not been the case. The owners previous to shipping the birds to the contest plant are vaccinated. All start away on a foot, and with an equal chance as this disease handicap is concerned. Now, this year we face a new problem, because the contest is made up of 75 per cent of the contest is being run at 50% of its value. This makes it necessary that we have at least 75 entries, so it is necessary for the year to see whether the contest continues or not. The poultry industry for it, worked hard to rectify it.
